111'' SR 9 Carib

1: Gillin, John. The Barama River Caribs of British Guiana. Papers of the Peabody Museum of American Archaeology and Ethnology, Vol. 14, No. 2, Cambridge, 1936.

Pp. xiv, 274, 30 plates, 13 figures in text (including one map).

Yale: C52. 12. 14,

[This monograph is based upon seven months of field research, concentrated for the most part on a small and recently formed settlement of Carib. The author concerns himself mainly with a detailed analysis of the elements of the social organization and personality factors which tend toward the integration or disruption of this settlement. Other cultural aspects are treated topically. A detailed section on anthropometry, including comparative data on the Arawak as well as other Carib groups, completes the study. There is little information on Carib history or spatial distribution. --Analyst]

Field date: 1932-1933
Analyst: Richard P. Schaedel

Evaluation: Ethnologist--5
Processed in 1955

2: Adams, Kathleen Joy. The Barama River Caribs of Guyana restudied: forty years of cultural adaptation and population change.
Dissertation (Anthropology)--Case Western Reserve University, 1972. University Microfilms Publication, no. 73-6271. Ann Arbor, University Microfilms, 1973.

4, 7, 155 l.; 14 tables; 17 text figures.

HRAF copy.

[This is a restudy of the same people studied in 1: Gillin. It is based largely on secondary data, e.g., general archival data and government census reports, supplemented by field work. The purpose is to study the history of forty years of cultural change, "...from the perspective of the regional influences upon a local population." (p. 144) Particular emphasis is given to changes in demography and settlement patterns. One chapter is devoted to changes in social organization. Footnotes are located at the end of each chapter. Data which refer to 1: Gillin have been marked for category 175.]

Field Date: 1970-1971
Analysts: Marlene Martin, marker
John Beierle, checker

Evaluation: Ethnologist-4, 5
Processed in 1974